Course Description:

As part of collaboration with the Legal Aid Society of Cincinnati, students act as advocates for victims of domestic violence.  Second-year students, who cannot be licensed as legal interns in Ohio, participate in interviewing, case preparation, and other aspects of clinic work.

Students might participate as domestic violence advocates in other ways as well.  For example, students conducted research and assisted in writing an amicus brief filed with the United States Supreme Court in Abbott v. Abbott, involving custody rights.  In addition, when the YWCA shelter was threatened with loss of funding, two clinic students testified before the Cincinnati City Council, which voted to restore funding.
