COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course covers the creation and operation of trusts and the rights and obligations associated with them. It includes the kinds of trusts available, fiduciary duties in the administration of trusts, the law of future interests, and related topics. Related tax issues are not raised or discussed.

SPECIAL NOTE: This is the second part of a series of two classes that covers the basics of the law of wills, trusts, and future interests. The first class in the series is Wills and Estates offered in fall semesters. This class will be offered in spring semesters. Students may take these classes in any sequence and need not take both classes.
