COURSE DESCRIPTION:
This seminar is offered to those who wish to explore ethical issues in a more in-depth fashion. Using real-life fact patterns, students will be examining ethical issues and developing action plans for addressing such issues. Each student will write an in-depth paper on a topic developed with the professor’s guidance.

SPECIAL NOTE:
Taking this course satisfies only one of the graduation requirements (seminar or writing). If you take this course and have not yet satisfied the seminar requirement, you will be deemed to have met the seminar requirement. However, if you take this course and you have already met the seminar requirement, you will be deemed to have met the writing requirement. Two, separate courses are required to satisfy both the seminar and writing requirements. No one course satisfies them both.
